

Sweden is an exciting and progressive place to study environmental issues and policies.

A Semester, or even year at the Newman Institute might be just the thing for you if you are interested in studying in a beautiful setting within a country at the forefront of sustainable thinking.

The Newman Institute is located in the heart of Uppsala!

We strive to bring our students first-hand experiences. So, our courses include visits to relevant industries, companies, and organizations in Uppsala and Stockholm.

Additionally, we provide overnight excursions outside of the classroom relating to nature, sustainability, and the environment, given the unique climate of Sweden.

Study Abroad in Uppsala, Sweden!

For more inspiration visit:

www.newman.se/eng

The Sustainability Profile
Erasmus+

Contact:

General Inquiries
semester.sweden@newman.se

Director, Office for International Programs felicia.johnson@newman.se

THE NEWMAN INSTITUTE
UNIVERSITY COLLEGE

MEET OUR SUSTAINABILITY EXPERT

My name is Andreas Carlgren, and I teach environmental studies at the Newman Institute. I served as the Swedish Minister for the Environment for five years, between 2006 and 2011. During my term I participated in several UN conferences on climate change; however, most of my efforts were naturally spent on developing Swedish environmental policy.

Since 2012, I have been engaged full-time at the Newman Institute. While I have left politics behind, I have kept alive my passion for the environment. I hope that through this program, we will all be strengthened in our commitment for a better environmental future for our planet!

ACADEMICS

Interdisciplinary in approach, our courses are designed to accommodate students from diverse educational backgrounds. Undergraduate exchange students are required to take three courses. Two additional courses may however be chosen from the available offerings.

Courses (Fall 2018)

- International Climate Change Negotiations
Andreas Carlgren
- Swedish Environmental Policy and Praxis
Andreas Carlgren
- Environmental Destruction— So What?
Olle Torpman
- Sustainable Democracies
Jasmina Nedevska Törnqvist
- Theology and Film
Philip Geister

HOUSING

The Newman Institute offers two different housing options, both of which are beautifully located, and offer an international community living experience. All rooms are either single- or double- occupancy, with students sharing bathrooms and kitchens. Housing is a guarantee and we do our best to place students after personal preference.

The Länna house is situated in a spectacular countryside setting on a historic Swedish farm (gård). This option is ideal for anyone looking for a quiet setting with beautiful nature all around. Students will share responsibility for upkeep of the henhouse and vegetable garden.

The Newman house is situated in the center of bustling Uppsala, with close proximity to the other universities in Uppsala and their academic, cultural, and social offerings. This option is ideal for students seeking a Swedish university town experience.

DATES

Fall 2018

Application Due:
March 15th

Arrival to Uppsala:
August 20th

Start of Classes:
August 27th

End of Semester:
December 14th

Spring 2019

Application Due:
October 1st

Arrival to Uppsala:
January 14th

Start of Classes:
January 21st

End of Semester:
May 31st

FINANCING AND APPLICATION

The Newman Institute is a committed member of the ERASMUS+ Programme, which facilitates exchange of students and faculty with our partner universities.

The application process is different for each of our partner universities, so check with your school's Erasmus+ coordinator for more information.

